The music was composed by Frank Wildhorn with lyrics by Jack Murphy and script by Ivan Menchell. The musical was originally written in English and translated into Japanese and Korean for their respective productions in 2015. There has since been multiple production runs in both Japan and South Korea, and some concert performances in Russia. The musical has not yet had a public performance in English. In 2014, there was a closed English-language workshop in New York for the producers, and in early 2015, some of the English versions of the songs were released online. In January 2017, script-writer Ivan Menchell said on Twitter that an English-language production was "coming soon!"[1] There has not yet been any official announcement. Development and pre-production HoriPro is the Japanese production company behind the musical, who were previously part of the Death Note live-action films. Their production team notably included Broadway composer Frank Wildhorn, who composed the music; Jack Murphy, who wrote the lyrics; and Ivan Menchell, who wrote the script. Wildhorn was unfamiliar with Death Note when HoriPro approached him, and he took on the project when his son told him to do it because "it would be the coolest thing [he'd] ever done."[2] The musical was written in English and later translated into Japanese and Korean. On April 14, 2014, a closed English-language workshop was held in New York as a presentation for the Japanese and Korean producers.[3] Beginning in January 2015, some of the English-language demo songs were released online to generate buzz leading up to the Tokyo production opening. In total, eight songs were released: "Playing His Game", "They're Only Human", "When Love Comes", "I'll Only Love You More", "Kira", "Stalemate", "Honor Bound", and "Where is the Justice". The songs were recorded by a New York demo cast different from the workshop cast, with the exceptions of Adrienne Warren and Eric Anderson, who played Misa and Ryuk, respectively. Plot Act I Light Yagami proclaims the failures of the justice system to his teacher, his classmates rallying to his side as he does so ("Where is the Justice"). Meanwhile, two Shinigami named Ryuk and Rem discuss how pitiful humans are, before Ryuk, seeking entertainment, drops the Death Note into the human world ("They're Only Human"). Light finds it in the street and jokingly writes the name of a gunman holding a group of children hostage ("Change the World"). When the gunman dies, Light is initially horrified - until his hatred of criminals prompts him to use the Death Note to rid the earth of crime, beginning a series of murders that quickly attracts the attention of the police ("Hurricane"). Following this, Soichiro Yagami reluctantly proposes that they enlist L. Whilst Light flicks through the Death Note in his room, Ryuk appears and identifies himself as its original owner. He reveals that he will write Light's name inside when it's his time to die and that only those who have touched the notebook can see him—as demonstrated when Light's little sister, Sayu, bursts into the room, completely oblivious to Ryuk's presence. When she leaves, Light reveals his plans to become the world's savior, using the internet to show Ryuk that people have joyously labeled the killings the work of "Kira". Ryuk, amused that their "hero" is no more than a bratty teenager, reveals that he didn't choose Light for the task and merely dropped the Death Note out of boredom ("Kira"). Subsequently, Light and Sayu attends the concert of famous idol Misa Amane, who dedicates her performance to Kira ("I'm Ready"). Afterwards, when Sayu mentions that she believes Kira's actions are wrong, Light asks what she would say to Kira if she met him. He is left stunned by her response - she would tell him to stop, declaring that he should follow her brother's example, whilst Misa muses over how much she idolizes Kira ("We All Need a Hero"). Returning home, Light watches an Interpol broadcast in which L reveals himself and vows to capture Kira, causing Light to write his name in the Death Note. However, this turns out to be a trap; after the man dies, the real L's voice enters, explaining that his stand-in was a criminal scheduled for execution. Ending the broadcast with the deduction that Kira is in the Kantō region, L ponders their oncoming battle, realizing that his opponent is a high school student ("The Game Begins"). Reeling after carelessly falling into L’s trap, Light tries to learn more about the Death Note from Ryuk, wondering how far he can manipulate the details of a person's death. Soichiro enters the room and discusses the case with his son, mentioning L's deduction from the schedule of murders that Kira is a student. Soichiro then declares that L was wrong to sacrifice his stand-in during the broadcast, advising Light to be as righteous as possible whilst unaware that he is Kira ("There Are Lines"). Whilst L deduces that Kira needs a name and a face to kill, Light asks Ryuk, who can see someone's name above their heads, to tell him L's name should they ever meet him. Ryuk instead offers to give Light his own "Shinigami Eyes" in exchange for half of his remaining lifespan. Rebuffing the deal, Light changes the schedule of murders, revealing Kira's connection to the police and forcing L to probe his own investigation team. Confident that the task force will retaliate by finding and exposing L's identity, Light ponders with his opponent the outcome of their game ("Secrets and Lies"). Afterwards, a news broadcast announces that the FBI have sent several agents to Japan, prompting Light to find the identity of one agent, Haley Belle, on his fiancée's social media profiles. Writing Belle's name in the notebook, Light specifies that they meet at Shinjuku Station, where the agent writes the names of his colleagues onto a Death Note scrap before committing suicide ("Hurricane (reprise)"). Upon learning the deaths of the FBI agents, the task force is torn between their duty to capture Kira and fear of being killed. Soichiro gives each man the opportunity to leave, prompting Hideki Ide to quit the case ("Change the World (reprise)"). Light and L listen from different locations as the citizens praise Kira, with the detective vowing to bring him to justice. Suddenly, a second Death Note falls from the sky and is discovered by Misa, who has fled from a stalker's clutches ("Where is the Justice (reprise)"). Act II After the crowd praises Kira once more ("Where is the Justice (reprise)"), Rem appears before Misa. She reveals that the newly-dropped Death Note belonged to her stalker's killer, a Shinigami named Gelus who turned to sand upon extending Misa's lifespan. Explaining that Kira punished the man who murdered her parents, Misa begs a reluctant Rem to give her Shinigami Eyes so she can assist him ("Mortals and Fools"). Meanwhile, the task force admits to Soichiro their lack of trust in L, including their suspicion that he is really Kira. L then appears before them and offers his own suspect - Light Yagami. Vowing to investigate him closely, he meets the young genius in college, catching him off-guard by revealing himself to be L. Whilst the pair plot each other's downfall, Misa writes a new song declaring in subtext her devotion to Kira ("Stalemate"). As she records it, she sends a message to a TV station as "the Second Kira", begging to meet the original in Shibuya, which disturbs Light but amuses Ryuk ("I'll Only Love You More"). This message also forces L to accept the impossible, including the likelihood that Shinigami exist ("The Way Things Are"). The next day in Shibuya, news of the two Kiras is met with joy by the people, hopeful that the pair will join forces ("Where is the Justice (reprise)"). Afterwards, Light and Misa meet and introduce their Shinigami to one another. When Misa begs him to become her boyfriend in exchange for her help, Light manipulates her into revealing the name of a task force member following them, much to Rem's horror. After agreeing to meet on the college campus, they leave Ryuk and Rem to ponder the situation, with Ryuk warning Rem about getting too attached to Misa ("Mortals and Fools (reprise)"). Later, L's continued assertions of Light's guilt results in a heated argument with Soichiro, ending with the revelation that the officer who tailed Light has committed suicide. Convinced that the two Kiras are working together, L leaves Soichiro to question his faith in his son ("Honor Bound"). Back at college, L challenges Light to a set of tennis, the intensity of their mental battle boiling over into the match ("Playing His Game"). After winning, Light probes L about his suspicions, at which point Misa arrives. Light introduces her to L, allowing Misa to see the latter's real name. However, L has her arrested before she can reveal what she knows, having found evidence on the envelope sent to the TV station that ties her to the Second Kira. Blindfolding her and chaining her to a cross, L tries to force Misa into confessing, but she refuses. Appalled, Soichiro predicts that L will pay for torturing Misa and reaffirms his belief in Light ("Borrowed Time"). Rem then enters Misa's cell, offering to erase her memory of the Death Note so that she won't betray Light. Misa agrees, leaving Rem heartbroken ("When Love Comes"). She then finds Light and Ryuk, at which point Light declares that she must write L's name in the Death Note, sacrificing herself to save Misa just like Gelus. Anticipating this, Rem agrees and orchestrates L's death as Light specifies. With the stage set for the final showdown, L goes to meet Light in an abandoned warehouse on Daikoku Wharf ("The Way Things Are (reprise)"). Upon arrival, L holds Light at gunpoint, whereupon the latter confesses and reveals both his Death Note and Ryuk. Light then declares his victory, as L's name has already been written by Rem ("The Way It Ends"). L shoots his foe, but this is part of Light's plan - he will tell Soichiro that L was the real Kira and tried to kill him, thus allowing him to join and ultimately manipulate the task force under the pretense of finding the Second Kira. However, L warns Light that the game has not yet finished before committing suicide, and is ultimately proven correct. As Ryuk congratulates Light, he laments that life will return to a boring routine without L to challenge him. Playing the final move, Ryuk writes Light's name in the Death Note as the latter begs to be spared, declaring himself "the God of the New World" before he dies ("Hurricane (reprise)"). Remarking that everyone's efforts were meaningless, Ryuk departs with the Death Note. As the people mourn the loss of Kira, Soichiro and Sayu find the bodies in the warehouse and are left without knowing what really happened to Light. Meanwhile, Misa finds Rem's remains and disperses them, marking the latter's death and the end of the story ("Requiem"). Music The music was composed by Frank Wildhorn with lyrics by Jack Murphy. For instance, the Japanese version "Yatsu no Naka he" (ヤツの中へ, "Inside of Him") has very different lyrics from the original "Playing His Game". In an interview at Comic Con Russia 2018, it was clarified that a Russian-language production is still years away.[26] The two leads, Alexandr Kazmin and Yaroslav Bayarunas, first performed the song "Playing His Game" at Comic Con Russia on October 1, 2017.[27] A studio-recorded version of the song was released on their VK social media account later that day.[28][29] A cast album is currently being recorded.[30][31] Halloween-themed concerts were held on October 31[32] and November 2nd[33] at the Glastonberry in Moscow, Russia. Bayarunas (L) and Elena Gazaeva (Rem) performed some of the songs at AvaExpo on December 10. Another concert was held December 12, 2017 at the Opera Concert Club in St. Petersburg, Russia.[34] Pentagram held their first fully-casted concert on November 24, 2018 in which all main singing parts were performed for the first time.[35] In 2021, Pentagram announced that after long discussions with Japanese studios and after many difficulties, they had finally come to an arrangement and could once again perform Death Note: The Musical, with a new concert scheduled for April 17, 2021 in Moscow. The new concert will feature an updated translation, and some songs will be performed for the first time in Russian.[36] Character 2017 cast album & performances 2021 performance Light Yagami Alexandr Kazmin (Александр Казьмин)[37] Alexandr Kazmin L Yaroslav Bayarunas (Ярослав Баярунас)[37] Yaroslav Bayarunas Misa Amane Mercedesz Csampai (Мерседес Чампаи)[38] Vera Sveshnikova (Вера Свешникова) Rem Elena Gazaeva (Елена Газаева)[39] Elena Gazaeva Ryuk Kirill Gordeev (Кирилл Гордеев)[40] Kirill Gordeev Soichiro Yagami Alexander Marakulin (Александр Маракулин) Sayu Yagami Evdokia Malevskaya (Евдокия Малевская) Possible future productions According to HoriPro CEO Yoshitaka Hori, Death Note: The Musical could have future productions in other countries, as HoriPro is interested in licensing production rights. France was one of the countries mentioned that was interested in putting on a production. Furthermore, there have been rumors since 2014 of the show coming to Broadway. Initially, it was thought that it would take 5–10 years for a production outside of Asia to get going due to preparation time.[41] However, on January 16, 2017, when a fan asked script-writer Ivan Menchell on Twitter, "Where's the English version??" Menchell responded, "coming soon!", implying that news of a full English production is imminent.[1] In March 2018, Ivan Menchell indicated that an English-language performance could be released in England, stating in a Tweet: "I am fairly certain it will go to London before coming to NY."[42] Image gallery Main article: Death Note: The Musical/Image Gallery Japanese productions L (Teppei Koike) and both Lights (Kenji Urai and Hayato Kakizawa)L (Fū Takahashi) and both Lights (Shouma Kai and Ryouta Murai) Korean productions Video gallery Main article: Death Note: The Musical/Video Gallery Japanese productions Musical digest video (Japan 2015)Musical rehearsal (Japan 2015)Musical first commercial (Japan 2017)Video announcing the return for 2017, using 2015 footage Korean productions Death Note The Musical Highlights (Korean)Performance highlights (2015) with English subtitlesMusical Showcase Highlights (Korean 2015)Highlights from the 2015 Showcase External links References ↑ 1.0 1.1 "coming soon!" tweet by Ivan Menchell (@ivanmenchell), January 16, 2017. ↑ Broadway composer Frank Wildhorn brings life to hit manga ‘Death Note’ on stage JapanTimes.co.jp April 2, 2015. ↑ Frank Wildhorn Musical Death Note Has NYC Reading With Andy Kelso, Robert Cuccioli and Adrienne Warren Prior to Japanese Premiere playbill.com April 17, 2014. ↑ 4.0 4.1 4.2 4.3 4.4 4.5 English song title confirmed in a Facebook post by Frank Wildhorn.
